manassas/bull run battlefield

From Washington D.C.: Interstate 66 West to Exit 47B, Business Route 234 North. Proceed through the first traffic light. Make second right. Henry Hill Visitor Center is located at the top of the hill.
Manassas
VA 22110

Manassas National Battlefield park preserves the scene of two major Civil War battles. Located a few miles north of the valued railroad junction of Manassas, Virginia, this peaceful area saw clashes between the armies of the North and South in 1861 and 1862. Today the battlefield park provides the opportunity for visitors to explore the historic terrain where men fought and died for their beliefs a century ago.

the spirit of st. louis

14390 Air and Space Museum Parkway
Chantilly
VA 22021

The Spirit of St. Louis is the airplane used by Charles Lindbergh to make the first single-handed, non-stop trans-Atlantic flight on May 20 and May 21, 1927. Charles Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt airfield in Long Island, New York and had a successful touchdown at the Le Bourget Aerodrome in Paris, France. The flight lasted for 33 hours, 30 minutes and 29.8 seconds. Also known as the Ryan NYP, it is a custom design by Donald Hall of Ryan Airlines based on the Ryan M-2. Although designed for its successful New York to Paris flight and built in San Diego, it was named after St. Louis because of financial backing from that city. The flight was inspired by and won the $25,000 Orteig Prize. Some duplicates of the plane also exist, such as one at the Minneapolis-Saint Paul International Airport. The airport also had Lindbergh's original Curtiss JN-4D "Jenny", which miraculously survived a fire in a downtown Minneapolis high-rise in 1982. It's now at the Cradle of Aviation Museum on Long Island in New York.
